Impact and Justice

JULY 2019

Alignment with the Holy Father’s Message

On the fourth anniversary of Laudato Si’, we reflect on its strong connection to our work at CBIS. This landmark encyclical is primarily an urgent call to action on safeguarding our environment. However, Pope Francis makes clear the challenge is not isolated, and we share that view. Climate change is a matter of human dignity much like our other focus issues, human trafficking and child sexual exploitation. As the Holy Father tells us, “we constitute a single human family, everything is interconnected.”

□ LAUDATO SI’ □

“We are faced not with two separate crises, one environmental and the other social, but rather with one complex crisis.... Strategies for a solution demand an integrated approach to combating poverty, restoring dignity to the excluded, and at the same time protecting nature.”

Taking Luxury Apparel Brands to Task

CBIS is spearheading an investor coalition to engage all 43 companies in KnowTheChain’s 2018 Apparel & Footwear Benchmark, which rates efforts to address forced labor in supply chains. We met with Hugo Boss and Inditex, and sent letters to Hermès and Fast Retailing to:

- Recommend ways to strengthen policies and practices.
- Highlight positive steps taken by each company.

CBIS received an immediate reply from Fast Retailing with some initial questions. We look forward to a productive engagement.

“As an investor in Fast Retailing, we are greatly concerned by the company’s poor rating.... Fast Retailing scored only 43 out of 100 possible points overall and 6 points out of 100 on recruitment.”

STARK INEQUALITIES IN HIGH FASHION

Our apparel industry campaign includes some of the biggest names in fashion. Their products command premium prices, but workers making them may toil in poverty.

For example, garment workers in Bangladesh struggle to earn a living wage while the luxury items they produce can sell for thousands of dollars apiece.

Enlisting Airlines Worldwide Against Human Trafficking

CBIS continues to build on our past successes with larger airlines by engaging small but significant carriers flying critical routes across Asia and South America. After requesting information from Copa Airlines, CBIS was pleased to learn about the Panama-based company’s initiatives, including:

- Specific procedures and mandatory training for front-line personnel.
- A dedicated section of its “Code of Ethics” applicable to all employees and vendors.
- Adoption of best practices from global industry associations.

In our discussions with EasyJet, we learned the company is also taking a multi-pronged approach, working to prevent human trafficking on flights while pressing suppliers on the issue. CBIS provided a list of best practices the U.K.-based carrier requested.

“What kind of world do we want to leave to those who come after us, to children who are now growing up? This question not only concerns the environment in isolation; the issue cannot be approached piecemeal.”

Historic Initiatives on Both Sides of the Atlantic

Filed first shareholder resolution on the issue at Verizon

Organized U.K.'s first investor briefing on the issue

Our approach to combating child sexual exploitation online combines a spectrum of strategies, including filing shareholder resolutions and educating investors. In May, CBIS made history on both fronts—on two continents.

Making Inroads with Tech & Telecom Leaders in the U.S.

Strong support for our resolution at Verizon will send a signal to the telecom sector that companies need to take aggressive action against child sexual exploitation.

OF VERIZON SHAREHOLDERS VOTED FOR OUR LANDMARK RESOLUTION—A SIGNIFICANT LEVEL OF SUPPORT FOR A SOCIAL ISSUE.

CBIS met with Apple representatives about preventing and detecting child sexual exploitation online. The company recently strengthened its privacy policies and app developer guidelines pertaining to child sex abuse imagery.

CBIS continues to work with AT&T. This year the company stopped advertising on YouTube in the wake of a scandal over sexually abusive comments on videos of children.

Uniting Stakeholders at the U.K. Parliament

Our groundbreaking investor briefing included UNICEF, child protection experts and U.K. government officials. The event was hosted by Baroness Glenys Thornton of the House of Lords.

Successes Across Our Campaign

CBIS made measurable progress with companies on climate change in 2Q, with the most exciting developments occurring at BP’s annual meeting. BP was also one of several CBIS focus companies—along with Royal Dutch Shell, ExxonMobil and Ford Motor Co.—that lobbied U.S. government officials to implement a carbon tax.

CBIS attended BP’s annual meeting in the U.K., where we:

- Spoke in support of the resolution we co-filed and pressed leaders to set goals for reducing emissions from the use of the company’s fossil fuel products (i.e., “Scope 3” emissions).
- Met with the new chairman to further make the case for Scope 3 reductions and aligning public policy and trade association stances with the company’s climate change goals.

Our ongoing engagement with Ford bore significant fruits in 2Q, as the company:

- Released its first Climate Change Scenario Report as a result of a request CBIS made to CEO Jim Hackett in 2017.
- Lobbied U.S. officials to create consistent national fuel economy standards, after CBIS encouraged the company to respond to proposed rollbacks to federal rules.

ExxonMobil

CBIS sent a strong message to Exxon’s board by voting against all directors over the company’s inadequate response to climate change and inability to factor climate risk in its operations, even as rivals implement stronger measures.

At Shell’s 2019 Management Day in the Netherlands, CBIS:

- Queried CEO Ben van Beurden about energy policy hurdles for the company’s plan to transform itself into the world’s largest electricity company.
- Pressed other executives on partnerships, hydrogen’s potential as a clean and renewable fuel, and meeting aggressive emissions reduction goals.

CBIS also saw progress at China National Offshore Oil Corp. Ltd. (CNOOC), which is resuming its investment in offshore deepwater wind energy. We urged the company to diversify into renewable strategies during engagements in 2018.

Major Oil Companies & Investors Join Vatican Call for Carbon Pricing

The Vatican and University of Notre Dame co-hosted a climate change dialogue with top oil and gas executives and asset managers in June. The event culminated with Pope Francis and attendees signing a joint statement supporting carbon pricing and transparency on climate initiatives.

“We have to realize that a true ecological approach always becomes a social approach; it must integrate questions of justice in debates on the environment, so as to hear both the cry of the earth and the cry of the poor.”

□ LAUDATO SI' □

Conclusion: Laudato Si' & CBIS, Focused on Human Dignity

In his June 2015 encyclical, Pope Francis urges us to join the fight against climate change as part of a larger calling. The overarching theme of this historic missive—and our active ownership initiatives at CBIS—is preserving human dignity. Our Catholic Responsible InvestmentsSM team has engaged companies for nearly three decades to confront this complex challenge in its many interrelated forms. That linkage drives our global and holistic approach as we continue working to protect our environment as well as the marginalized and defenseless.

Investor Spotlight

To amplify our message to companies, CBIS frequently partners with like-minded investors and fellow members of the Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility. We appreciate our longtime collaboration with the Socially Responsible Investment Coalition, based in San Antonio, TX, which recently co-signed letters with CBIS to Fast Retailing and Hermès outlining ways to prevent human trafficking in the apparel supply chain.
